21 Dec.

To William Lloyd Garrison

• Hudson, N.Y.. Sends money due on Liberator subscriptions. Disapproved of the resort to arms by E. P. Lovejoy. Comments on the controversy with the promoters of the Clerical Appeal. Thinks that the Abolitionists should concentrate their efforts on the Anti-Slavery cause alone. Objects to giving money for religious instruction. Refers to Job Scott's comment on this subject. "... it appears to me that man comes from the hand of his Creator innocent, not virtuous nor vicious ..." Claims that "man knows right from wrong either instinctively, or by outward means ..."

To Hannah Bevan

No.119

7 Upper Market St., Woolwich, Engl.: The writer is having the antislavery contributions sent to the addressee. Asks that the two bundles be kept separate, "as we hope the history of these contributions may prove as helpful to the cause as their pecuniary value - or even more so." Almost all the contributions have come "from those who have heard for the first time of American slavery." Tells that Elizabeth Pease "had had another attack...but speaks of it as a slight one."

Born in Norwich, England. Wrote religious books and "popular tales" in the 1820s. Visited the United States in 1835-37. Wrote Society in America (1837) and Retrospect of Western Travel (1838). Became mentally ill during the early 1840s, but recovered through the use of mesmerism. Was attacked by her brother James for her changed religious views. Mrs. M. W. Chapman edited her autobiography in 1876. Consult main cards for full contents.

To Rev. William James

«Liverpool, England. The writer explains why he did not sign the Reply to the Boston Invitation. Thinks that Slavery is a crime of the State and that it can only be destroyed by law. Says that if he inherited slaves he would turn them over to the State. Thinks that ordinary private manumission is detrimental to the best interests of the slaves. It allows a slaveholder to salve his conscience and does not call for any attempt on the part of the slaveholder to rehabilitate the slave. Thinks that refusing an invitation because of the personal conduct of a member of the inviting organization is a "somewhat far-fetched scrupulosity." Doubts that the recipients of the Reply will think all of it.

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

Edg baston? The writer reports that "the concluding part of the Memorials in the Autobiography of Harriet Martineau is in the hands of our English printers." Mentions some details of proof reading and dealings with Smith, Elder & Co. The writer explains the reason for striking out "pro-slavery tendencies" in one passage, -there was no justification for attributing pro-Slavery tendencies to the leaders of the Free Trade movement. "If it is not too late can you alter the passage in the American Edition?" The writer refrains from requesting an alteration of the "painful passage" in the book. (Meaning not clear) Concedes that the addressee has a right to follow her own discretion. Says that the last of the Norwich Martineaus died two days ago.
